The Parties attach great importance to a good preparation for the Summit.
6. The Parties warmly welcomed the comprehensive report “In Larger Freedom” that the Secretary-General presented on March 21, 2005. They reaffirmed their determination to contribute to achieving the Millennium Development Goals (MDGs) and the conclusions reached at the Conferences held in Monterrey and Johannesburg. They stressed the necessity of a comprehensive reform of the UN's principal organs i.e. the General Assembly, the Economic and Social Council, the Security Council as well as the upgrading of the Commission on Human Rights with a view to strengthening and enhancing the representativeness, transparency and effectiveness of the UN system. 7. In the context of Cooperation and with a view to identify ways and means for a general enhancement of EU-Mexico bilateral relations as a whole, the European Commission outlined its ideas for a renewed approach for Mexico. This approach takes stock of the progress already achieved in the context of the Global Agreement and acknowledges the advances of Mexico in the political and economic spheres.

8. The new approach intends to identify and adopt modalities of cooperation better corresponding to the level of development reached by Mexico and to the international role this country now plays. The new proposed approach intends also to take into account Mexico's potential for further growth and relevance on the global scene.
9. Future EU-Mexico cooperation should take into account specific sectoral policy dialogues and specific sectoral agreements foreseen in the global agreement. Policy dialogues will be carried out having as reference the modalities already adopted by the EU in its dialogue with other emerging countries of great economic and political relevance but adapting them to the specificities of the EU-Mexico relationship. In this context, particular attention will be devoted to the issue of social cohesion. The EU intends to share with Mexico its experience in the field and support Mexico in identifying its own specific way to enhance internal social cohesion and progress toward further development.
